PREFACE.

---

In the preparation of the following work the editor has consulted Gardner's "Dictionary of the Army," Cullum's "Biographical Register of the Graduates of the Military Academy," Powell's "Records of Living Officers U. S. Army," Hamersly's "Register of the Army 1779 to 1879," Heitman's "Historical Register of the U. S. Army," and the Official Registers issued by the War Department.

No pains have been spared to render this work thoroughly correct in its details, and any errors or omissions that may be discovered are occasioned only by lack of opportunity to obtain proper information.

A list of the Volunteer Officers in the service of the Government, June, 1900, has been added to the work, which will be found to add importance to its general character.

OF THE # OFFICERS OF THE ARMY

1779—1780.

---

NOTE.—The method by which Officers were first promoted in the American Army being irregular, particularly in cases where officers were prisoners, several alterations were afterwards made, and commissions antedated, even to the vacancies they were to fill up, in order to do justice to the injured, which has occasioned some apparent inconsistencies.

The following lists were made from a variety of documents, viz: Resolves of Congress, Returns and Registeries of Commissions in the War Office.
